

New York Times: Turkish Dam Project Threatens Thousands of Years of History

New York Times, Set. 2016; ISTANBUL – For five generations, Firat Argun’s family has lived in Hasankeyf, an ancient town on the Tigris River in southeast Turkey where he runs a small bed-and-breakfast with a well-appointed garden.

“I have everything in my garden,” he said recently. “I have already found my heaven.”

But his little heaven will soon be lost.

Further text:

http://www.nytimes.com/2016/09/02/world/europe/turkey-hasankeyf-ilisu-dam.html?smid=fb-share&_r=0